Monty lives just yards away from my house.He is a part of a small much loved show herd. The Aberdeen Angus coat rather than black is full of wonderful hues. As he moves the colours seem to morph from blues to purples and a multitude of browns. I wanted to create a piece that showed off these colours and power of the animal.

Artist Profile: Lee Atherton

Lee lives in North Oxfordshire village with his wife and two sons. He has been a commercial photographer for over 20 years creating images for advertising and PR firms. Then 2020 changed everything.

During the first lockdown in 2020 he began to create animal portraits, blending photography, painting and drawing.Â It was an idea he had wanted to explore for several years but never had the time.Â As the events of 2020 unfolded time was no longer an issue.

The pictures were never intended to be sold, just a creative idea that was to be explored during difficult times.Â The portraits celebrate renewed connections with natural surroundings that offered great solace during the 2020 isolations.

After much positive feedback people began to enquire about his art so Lee decided to have them printed and framed.Â After months finding a printer and framer that he was happy with.... eventually Atherton Art Prints was born.
